

Dr. Mahesh Gandhi

has been working as a psychiatrist in Bombay since 1982, teaching at various specialist clinics and universities. Initially he was in charge of psychiatry in a renowned clinic and published numerous textbooks before devoting himself entirely to homeopathy.

Since 1992 he works closely together with Dr. Rajan Sankaran. Both held lectures for Indian and foreign students. His extensive psychiatric knowledge, the clear descriptions and differentiations of pharmacopoeias, as well as the excellent preparation of his structured teaching make him an internationally sought after lecturer. Recently, he has been able to systematize homeopathic animal remedies even better.

Seminar content

Mahesh Gandhi is one of the greats of homeopathy worldwide. In recent years, he has been able to apply and systematically develop his personal evolution model (PEM) even in the most severe psychiatric conditions. With this he became groundbreaking for many homeopaths. It describes the development of the individual in analogy to the evolution of nature, as we already know from the order in the periodic table after Scholten and from Michal Yakir in the plant kingdom. Currently, Gandhi is also working on the systematics of evolutionary steps in the animal kingdom and has thus already made promising experiences in the field and has already shared them in various seminars. He understands how almost no one else can classify the patient's central themes, which are regarded as an expression of his personal level of development, into the respective subclasses of the natural kingdoms and thus determine a remedy that corresponds to this level of development. Illness is therefore nothing other than resistance to one's own development. The evolutionary method complements that of the vital sensations and proves to be particularly helpful when, as so often, they are not obvious or when there are only a few characteristic symptoms. Be inspired and inspired by one of the world's most experienced psychiatrists and homeopaths.
